Manage Your Medications—Be informed about all the medications you are taking. Although you probably already know many things about your medications, it is often a good idea to ask your pharmacist for help to make sure you are taking them correctly. Ask your pharmacist for advice on your medications, such as how to take them and when to take them, what to do if you miss a dose, and how to store them.

Get a Medication Check Up—At least once a year, ask your pharmacist to check all of your medicines, including over-the-counter medicines, to make sure you are taking them correctly and that there are no potential drug interactions or other problems with them.

Get a Medication Check Up—Store them where they are not easily accessible. Proper disposal of unused or expired medications can help prevent accidental overdoses.
